FACULTY OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

a place where tradition meets innovation

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences is Croatia's oldest and largest higher education and research institution in the humanities and social sciences. For more than 150 years, it has been at the forefront of teaching and research excellence. As an integral part of the University of Zagreb, which dates back to 1669, the Faculty plays a crucial role in education and scientific development in Croatia. Its long-standing tradition, rich cultural heritage, expertise of the teaching staff, and dedication to students have made it renowned and respected not only in Croatia but also across Europe.

The Faculty takes pride in its status as the largest faculty in the Republic of Croatia in terms of the number of study programs, and one of the largest by student enrollment. Our Faculty offers a unique double-major study option with flexible combinations, providing students with broader knowledge and the opportunity to create a personalized educational path. With the dual qualifications they acquire upon graduation, students significantly enhance their competitiveness in the increasingly demanding labor market, opening doors to numerous career opportunities.

MISSION AND VISION

leadership in education and research

Our mission is to serve as a national leader and global partner in creating, critically examining and sharing knowledge that contributes to a more humane society. We achieve this through a continuous commitment to innovation in education, high-quality scientific research, and active participation in social change. The Faculty is guided by the principles of openness, research-based teaching and ethics, aiming to provide our students not only with knowledge but also with the values that will guide them in the future.

The vision of the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences is to strengthen its position as a leading institution for humanities and social sciences in Central and Southeastern Europe. Our ambition is to attract the highest-quality and most motivated students from Croatia and abroad, creating a stimulating environment for their personal and professional development.

DIVERSE STUDY PROGRAMS

a pathway to double success

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences offers university studies at three levels of higher education: undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate. Our students have the opportunity to earn academic degrees ranging from a Bachelor's degree to a Master's degree and a PhD. Additionally, we provide lifelong learning opportunities through various programs for expanding and deepening knowledge.

One of the main advantages of the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences is the system of double-major studies, although many programs are also offered as single majors, allowing students to freely combine two study groups according to their interests. This approach to studying enables students to acquire a broader spectrum of knowledge and significantly enhances their employment opportunities after graduation.

PRACTICAL KNOWLEDGE AND INTERNATIONAL MOBILITY

the key to future success

In addition to theoretical knowledge, our students have the opportunity to acquire practical skills through various internship programs. This allows them to engage in professional work during their studies and gain valuable experience that will facilitate their transition to the job market.

International mobility is another key aspect of our activities. The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences participates in the Erasmus+ program, as well as in numerous bilateral inter-university and inter-faculty agreements. This enables our students to broaden their experiences through studying and internships abroad. Internationalization is a strategic goal of our Faculty, and the number of incoming and outgoing students is constantly increasing, thanks to the mobility programs and the support provided by the Faculty.

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences offers international students the opportunity to learn Croatian through Croaticum – the Center for Croatian as a Second and Foreign Language. Croaticum is the oldest and largest institution for learning and studying Croatian as a foreign language, making it an essential place for international students who wish to learn the language and immerse themselves in Croatian culture and tradition.

GENERIC AND SPECIFIC SKILLS

competencies for the challenges of the future

Students at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences acquire a wide range of knowledge and skills that open doors to various career opportunities. Through generic competencies such as communication skills, critical thinking, problem-solving, independence in work, and research abilities, our students become versatile professionals, ready to tackle challenges in various sectors.

In addition, our students acquire specific knowledge and qualifications that prepare them for work in various professional fields. Many of our students become teachers in secondary schools (Croatian language, foreign languages, philosophy, history, psychology, etc.), professionals in educational and cultural institutions (educators, psychologists, museum specialists, curators), or information specialists in libraries and archives. The wide range of jobs available to them is the result of the deep and broad education we provide.
